MIDDLE AGED FOLKS.

The Change Which Has Come Over the Spirit of the Times.

In the middle of the nineteenth century a man of forty-five was regarded almost elderly, and a woman of the same age was expected to have long since cut herself adrift from all ties binding her to her youth and to assume the appearance and deportment of & staid, exemplary matron. All this has changed in a particularly interesting way, of which the prominent feature is a seeming contradiction. If the threeyear-old child of today is as knowing as was the six-year-old of half a century ago, and the ten-year old boy of today is in many respects quite as much a man as was his grandfather at eighteen, one might naturally expect that in due gradation the modern middie aged man should be old beyond his years. But such is not the case,

Middle age, so far from hurrying on into senility, so far even from standing still, would seem actually to have stepped backward and marched alongside of youth. There is a jountiness, a quite a while, have returned to their dle age of today at which our fathers Their | would have shaken their heads as uned the middle aged parent from his children has been filled up. The curtain which shrouded the middle aged man generally from the eyes of youth and which caused him to be regarded with respect if not with awe has been lifted, and in obedience to the same influences which have made the schoolmaster the friend of the schoolboy and the regimental officer almost the comrade of his men the middle aged man of today is never so happy as when working or playing upon an equality and actually in competition with youth. As with men, so it is with women. Social statisticians tell us that the age at which women are considered most eligible for marriage has been very not ably advanced of late years, and we Dr. Ford of Galveston, Ga., is visit. know that the lament of many a matchmaking mamma is that the most dreaded rivals of her darling are not to be found so much among the girls of her own age as among women who not many years ago would have been relegated to the ranks of hopeless old maidenhood. The fact that the middle in manner and tastes is, of course, not the only reason for this, but it is among. the most potent.-London Spectator.
